

Do you have a healthcare question or clinical uncertainty that needs answering?

PenCLAHRC is a partnership between the NHS across Devon, Cornwall and Somerset, and the Universities of Exeter and Plymouth.

We are committed to working with healthcare professionals, patients and the public to identify areas of research that reflect the real needs and concerns of the health service in the South West.

We are keen to hear from you if you have a healthcare question or clinical uncertainty that needs answering.

We consider all ideas and use a stakeholder group, representing all our local NHS partners, to prioritise those to potentially develop into research projects.

Together, you can help us ensure that our research programme represents the real needs and concerns of people across Devon, Cornwall and Somerset.

To talk to us about ways in which we can help you develop your question or uncertainty, email us at:

penclahrc@exeter.ac.uk

To find out more about our research prioritisation process, or to submit a question to us, go to:

[clahrc-peninsula.nihr.ac.uk/
submit-a-question](https://clahrc-peninsula.nihr.ac.uk/submit-a-question)

